About Samarpan Arts and Commerce College

Being located in the capital city of the Gujarat State, Gandhinagar Charitable Trust Sanchalit Samarpan Arts and Commerce College was established, in 1996, by veteran philanthropist Shree Shankersinhji Vaghela with the sole aim of serving in the field of education, especially with a view to care for the educational needs of the students from various areas of the state. This grant-in-aid college endeavours to stimulate the development of creative and intellectual curiosity. The chief beneficiaries are those students who come from the diverse strata of the region, especially from the remote villages of South Gujarat and Saurashtra. The visionary and altruistic members of the Gandhinagar Charitable Trust ensure to admit at least 60% students from ST, SC, OBC & Minority. Affiliated to Gujarat University, and functioning under the auspices of Gandhinagar Charitable Trust, Samarpan Arts and Commerce College offers undergraduate courses with Bachelor's Degree Programmes (B.A. & B.Com.) in the field of Economics, English, Sanskrit, Gujarati and Commerce along with choice of elective courses in Psychology and Sociology. For the last two decades, this co-educational institution is committed towards shaping humane force and continuously working in creating and developing human resource for public service and admin sectors. Consequently, a large number of students have been serving in various public sector services and offices of the Gujarat State and outside as well. The institution also places strong emphasis on physical fitness and as a result, in past few years, our students have won Medals at National events in Shooting, Boxing, Karate and Taekwondo. Situated near the South-Western Base of the Indian Air Force, our IGNOU centre (SC-0911) for distance education fosters the needs of young officers, especially in the services of AIF, BSF and CRPF.

About the Conclave

Higher Education Teacher preparation is one of the most widespread and important fields of professional training in the country. Colleges and universities house more than 1,400 schools of education or education departments approved by the state to prepare teachers for public schools in what is termed "traditional teacher preparation." These institutions of higher education (IHEs) also have established "alternative certification programs" that differ from traditional programs primarily in the timing of the coursework, rather than in its content. (In traditional programs, teacher candidates enter the classroom only after completing coursework, whereas in alternative certification offered by IHEs they do so simultaneously with coursework.) Hundreds of organizations outside IHEs have begun in recent years to prepare teachers through alternative certification programs. This primer will provide a general overview of the field of teacher preparation, with a particular focus on aspects of Research, Innovation, Intellectual property rights and new models for higher education teachers. GAP analyses teacher preparation programs to determine the extent to which policies and practices they promote and ensure that the country has teachers who effectively help their students achieve at high levels. We start with the premise that the design of these programs is of prime importance, because that serves as the foundation for a program's function and impact. Following topics will be covered in National Conclave.
