About the Conference

There is a widespread consensus about an urgent need to reimagine education in a world of increasing complexity and uncertainty. New pathways must be developed to further the content and delivery of education as well as the skills and training of the students. In order to keep up with the challenges of the future, education must adapt to the ever-changing environment. While the presence of technology in the future of education is inevitable, we need to find ways to manipulate it to our advantage. At the same time, we need to learn to deal with problems arising from it. However, learning of languages will remain a central part of any curriculum as language learning provides not only greater cognitive development but also greater academic achievement. Literature fosters critical thinking skills and an understanding of the world around us.

The conference will focus on the intersection of language and literature as the harbinger of multidisciplinary research.

Besides this, the conference will also provide a platform to delve into some other issues, such as :-

- The viability of our existing methods of teaching and learning.
- The new methods of teaching and learning that must be embraced.
- The use of technology to support and optimise the work of teachers and students.
